Dear Sir:

I am writing to you this letter from Norway after receiving your adress from the BBC whom I contacted about their recent " science in action " program which discussed the use of bio-gas in China with yourself.

Here in Stavanger, Norway, we have formed a group to undertake a project to help farmers in Northern Ethiopia to get energy supply from their cattles dung. At present we are collecting relevant materials. However, we are particularly interested in the expirience of others where bio-gas as energy source is tried. We strongly believe this information will help us to learn from their expiriences and thus accelerate our planned project.

I would therefore appreciate very much any material you could provide us on the Chinese (or others) bio-gas program. Since we plan to start the project in autumn, I would again appreciate a quick response to our request.

Thanks in advance.
