

The following pictures are from Sri-Lanka when Selome was there as part of her study in Microfinance and also to explore the effects of tsunami.

A gummi arabicum tree

Teachers and students in informal chat

Eating rice with fingers

Hosts and guests

Selome visiting a Buddhist monastery

Another picture of hosts and guests

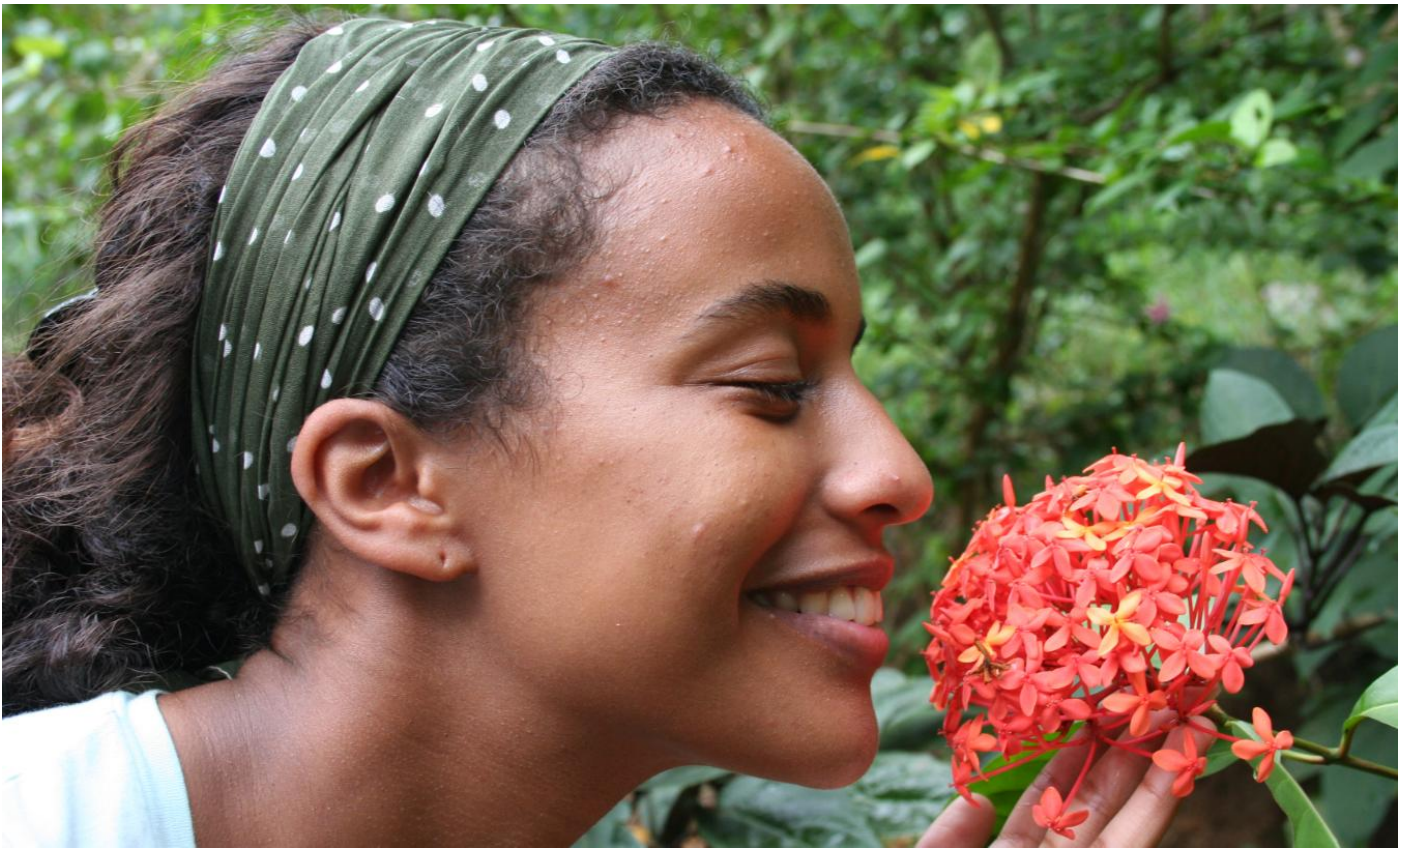

Another picture of hosts and guests

Hosted by a private family

Norwegians and Sri Lankans at a project site

A flower with strong flavour

Selome imitating the Sri lankan way of greeting

Dressed in national costume

Hosted by a Sri lankan family

Crossing a river with the help of an elephant

4 students riding an elephant

Selome at the elephant orphanage center

Picnicking with classmates

Packing drums for a long journey to Norway

Classmates drinking coconut juice with pipe

Selome drinking coconut juice

An area hit by the tsunami in 2004

The following pictures are from Vietnam when Selome was there as part of her study in Microfinance. She had the opportunity to make extensive tour of the country including known places during the Vietnam war. By sheer coincidence Gideon visited Vietnam when Selome was there and there are some pictures with him and his Vietnamese colleagues.

Selome writing her last report in Hoi An

Attending class in Hoi An

Feasting with classmates from Norway in Hoi An

The forbidden city in Hue'

With two classmates in Hoi An

Visiting a rice farm near the Chinese border

Rice farm on a mountain side in north Vietnam, near the Chinese border

Joining two girls of a rice farming family for pictures

Sailing in the Halong bay

An open market place in Hanoi

Tasting a fresh chili in Hanoi open air market

Bathing according to tradition for good health in Nha Trang

Nha Trang

In the sea shores of Nha Trang

Nha Trang

With Gideon in Nha Trang

Joining a meeting of the Red Cross in Nha Trang

Hosted by a family friend in Hanoi a typical breakfast meal in Hanoi writing the final paper at Hoian wri

A beautiful rice farm on a mountain side